July 17th, 2016: Sixteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time

Scripture Reflection by Father Matt

Dear sisters and brothers in Christ,

Ora et Labora, "prayer and work," is one motto of the Order of Saint Benedict. The two responsibilities of these religious Brothers and Sisters are a combination of the characters we see displayed in Martha and Mary in this Sunday's Gospel passage. Martha works to make Jesus welcome, and Mary sits at His feet in prayerful humility.

The Benedictine motto shows us that Martha and Mary's two manners of serving Jesus Christ are not opposed or even in competition with each other. We can work as we pray and pray as we work. I call this Catholic Multitasking. Much of what we do in our daily labors can be offered to God as a sacrifice, and performed with that mindfulness of God's presence that we call meditation. We can pray the Rosary while driving the tractor, or we can listen to our local Catholic radio station (100.3 FM in Perham!) as we wash the dishes or walk the dog. Even scrubbing toilets with Jesus becomes a noble task.

The Liturgy of the Mass is the perfect example of this combination. The Sacred Liturgy is literally the Work of God, our participation in the saving action of Jesus re-presented daily by His Body, the Church. We pray and offer sacrifice as one. This is our ideal, and the model for the rest of our activity in life. So put a little Martha in your Mary time, and don't forget to have Mary's heart as you go about your Martha-ing.

Peace in Christ,
Father Matthew Kuhn
